CAMPAIGN AGAINST DIABETES
RESEARCH, EDUCATION AND ACTION TO STOP AN EIDEMIC

Lifetime Risk of Getting Diabetes

| 52% | 49% | 31% | 45% | 40% | 27% |

Do you want to help change this future?

Did You Know?
- New York City is experiencing an epidemic of diabetes
- 700,000 New York City residents have diabetes
- One-third of those with diabetes don’t know that they have it

What can you do?
The CUNY Campaign Against Diabetes is pleased to offer an exciting opportunity for CUNY students to develop new skills to bring diabetes prevention and management messages to their workplaces, field placements and communities. The training will be conducted by Dr. Hollie Jones, a health psychologist at Medgar Evers College, and Lorraine Mongiello, a registered dietitian and certified diabetes educator.

Students will learn about important ways to:
- prevent diabetes in their communities
- educate people at increased risk of diabetes on ways they can prevent or delay the onset of the disease
- minimize the complications of poorly controlled blood sugar among people with diabetes
- improve practical skills in small group facilitation and raising community awareness

Students will not receive academic credit for their participation, but will receive a $300 stipend.

Students who are planning summer or fall internships or field placement in settings where obesity and diabetes are serious concerns are especially encouraged to apply.

Both undergraduate and graduate students are welcome.
For more information or to receive an application for the training program, please write to the CUNY Campaign Against Diabetes at:

CUNY.Diabetes@gmail.com